

FIGHT IN BOSTON ON STATE UNIVERSITY

Massachusetts Labor Men Say Poor Have No Chance for Education.

BIG COST STANDS IN WAY

Boston, March 1.—It is not surprising that the legislative committee on education failed to discuss for all time on Thursday the plan for the establishment of the "University of Massachusetts," a free institution of high learning. That should be no cause for wonder, for the measure which has the endorsement of Gov. Walsh and organized labor as well as of a number of individuals seeking to "unify" the community will remain to be disposed of. It is estimated that to build and maintain a State university of such standards as proposed would require an initial outlay of about $1,500,000 and an annual expenditure of about $500,000.

One reason why a considerable body of men believe Massachusetts should reject the idea is that the State Board of Education reported unfavorably on it, largely because of the cost, and educators of high standing have spoken against it. With seventeen colleges and universities in this State and about 18,000 men and women attending them the question arises whether or not there is room for another without injury, especially if tuition is free, to several of those already doing business. The Board of Education characterized the proposition as "unwarranted" at present. The only member of the board who inclined toward it at all was Dr. Frederick W. Hamilton, who signed the report with a reservation.

Big Cost in the Way.

He says that he believes the best results can be secured through a State university. "But," he continued, "the demands upon the treasury of such an enterprise are heavy and the financial needs of primary education are so great and so urgent that I am forced to the conclusion that the establishment of a State university for higher education at the public cost at this time is open to grave doubt. On this ground alone I sign the report as a whole."

The State board believes that it would be much cheaper for Massachusetts to establish a free scholarship fund, making an annual appropriation of $500,000, and accept the students from people who are inclined to benefit worthy young men and women in that way.

This is no new move. For some time labor people have been agitating a State university, and there are many who see politics behind the movement of Gov. Walsh. The report of the Legislative Committee on Education to let the matter drop. This committee is said to have felt that there is "considerable merit in the plan, and therefore recommended several measures to draft a resolution looking to a further investigation of the proposal."

Unfavorable Organized Labor.

Almost every labor organization in Massachusetts was represented at a hearing given several weeks ago when the Board of Education's report was under consideration. All the labor men were in favor of a State college being established, and the predominant argument was the request that the poor may have an equal opportunity with the rich regarding education. At least, and many of the speakers urged that a capstone be placed upon the high schools of the State so as to complete the educational system.

The proposed act establishing a State university called for its being within the metropolitan district of Boston and to be called the "University of Massachusetts." It was to be governed by a board of seven regents to be appointed by the Governor and constituting a body corporate, possessing the right to acquire property, to hold real estate, to sue and be sued, and to do all such things as may be necessary to accomplish the objects of the university, enact laws for its government and elect the requisite number of professors and other employees, as well as fix the salaries of the same.

The proposed act also provided that the university be open to men without tuition fees except in professional departments, and that the regents be empowered to establish an employment bureau to assist in finding work for needy students.

The act proposed an appropriation of $500,000 to be paid in the purchase of not less than 200 acres of land within thirty miles of the State House and to secure plans for the building of the university, as well as to pay other expenses. To raise money for the university the act proposed that a State tax of one cent on one mill of each dollar be levied on the assessed valuation of the cities and towns in Massachusetts be levied. The board figures that such a tax on the 1913 assessed valuation of Massachusetts of $1,997,000,000 would yield approximately $199,700, the minimum revenue upon which an institution of the kind contemplated could be maintained.

It is contended that Massachusetts has more extensive and better facilities for higher education in proportion to its population than any other State in the Union. There are seventeen universities and colleges, almost as many as in all the other New England States put together. With one exception a large proportion of the students are from Massachusetts, and it is contended that these institutions are capable of developing facilities for extensive courses, correspondence work and contributing to the work of the State and municipal authorities.

The board says it believes that ample accommodation could be provided for any increase in the number of students resulting from the operation of a plan of State scholarships.

WILL TURN DOWN HOME RULE.

New Jersey Senate Committee Rejects It. Home Rule.

THRENTON, N. J., March 1.—Senator Hutchinson's proposed home rule amendment to the constitution was severely criticized this afternoon at a Senate hearing by former Supreme Court Justice Bennett Van Syckel.

As viewed by Mr. Van Syckel the amendment would enable municipalities to restore race tracks, permit any form of gambling and in short to operate as separate sovereignties. He foresaw only confusion should it be enacted. Under the amendment there might be created as many legislatures as there are municipalities in the State.

Advertising to the provision that nothing authorized under the amendment should be in conflict with the State or Federal Constitution Mr. Van Syckel said it undertook to authorize the municipalities to do exactly the things prohibited by the constitution. Several other lawyers spoke against the amendment.

The majority of the members of the committee indicated at the close of the hearing that the proposed amendment would be reported adversely.

NATIONAL CONFERENCE ON PRESERVATION OF GAME

First Gathering of Its Kind Is Held at the Waldorf—News of Hotels.

Big Cost in the Way.

The first national conference on game breeding and preserving was held yesterday at the Waldorf-Astoria under the auspices of the American Game Protective Association. Frederic C. C. Walcott presided and representatives from every game producing State attended the conference. It was decided to request the American Game Protective Association to make the conference a annual affair.

William B. Houston, president of the Fish and Game Commission, presiding at the morning session, said that the weakness of our game protective legislation lay in the fact that not sufficient police power is provided to secure enforcement.

"A greater weakness," continued Mr. Houston, "lies in the fact that our legislation is not founded on the right principle. It aims at protection only by endeavoring to restrict the number of game birds and animals which are taken. It is a well known fact that on a Southern plantation where all shooting of the quail is stopped for a season of years the number of birds that flourish tends to decrease rather than increase."

Other speakers were: Duncan Dunn, superintendent of the New Jersey game farms; Arthur M. Barnes, manager of the poultry and game department, estate of William Rockefeller; Harry T. Rogers, superintendent of game farms, State of New York; Charles F. Deterick, Dabney game preserve, Milford, N. Y.; John B. Burman, president of the American Game Protective Association, New York; E. C. Hineham, chief game warden, Spirit Lake, Iowa, and A. N. Frey, Cold Spring Station, N. Y.

The game men met down to a dinner last night in the banquet hall of the Waldorf-Astoria. The speakers were Frederic C. Walcott and E. A. McIlhenny. Samuel B. Brierly of Chicago, and Leon Taylor of New Jersey.

Members of the game men met at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon. These members form the New York branch of graduates from this school at Chaumont, Va. Mrs. George W. Feltz is chairman of the New York branch of the game men. They decided to give a luncheon at the Waldorf-Astoria March 3.

A convention of the men composing the New York branch of the game men was held at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday afternoon. The meeting was followed by a dinner in the banquet hall of the main of the hotel.

Y. W. Chan, a Chinese student from Oxford University, England, arrived at the Waldorf-Astoria yesterday from that country.

SCHOOL AS THE SOCIAL CENTRE, FINLEY'S AIM

Commissioner Will Try to Improve Conditions in Rural Districts.

ALBANY, March 1.—The urgent problem of the State Department of Education, according to Dr. John H. Finley, State Commissioner, is to bring all the agricultural agencies in the State into relationship with the school as the centre of social life in the country.

"I had for several weeks at my disposal in the State Education Building last fall an exhibit of potatoes, apples and other farm products raised by country school boys," said Dr. Finley. "These were interesting in themselves as showing what boys might do with their hands, otherwise miscellaneous, perhaps, or with fields otherwise less productive."

"But I kept thinking that it would be even more interesting and gratifying to see an exhibit of what those potatoes, apples and the like had made of the boys. I happen to know of one seemingly worthless boy who has been made into a promising man by a flock of white chickens."

The State Education Department is interested in a larger agricultural productivity in this State, and in such training of boys and girls as will lead to the life of the country. It is even more deeply interested in what agriculture can be made to do for boys and girls who live in the country, in the presence of growing things.

"I hope that this department, by bringing all these and other agricultural educational agencies in this State into relationship with the school as the centre of social life, will not only multiply meat and potatoes and apples, but conserve, develop and enrich our country life and at last touch every country home."

OBJECTS TO VACCINATION.

Jersey City Father Fights Against Board of Education.

Because his twelve-year-old daughter Jessie was denied admission to Public School 24 for the reason that he refused to allow her to be vaccinated Herbert A. Thorpe of 78 Cleary avenue, Jersey City, yesterday asked for a writ of mandamus in the Supreme Court to compel the Board of Education to accept his child as a pupil.

In his petition Mr. Thorpe recited that on February 10 last his daughter, even after presenting a doctor's certificate setting forth that she was in good physical condition, was denied admission. He declared that inasmuch as there is no smallpox epidemic in Jersey City the action of the authorities was unwarranted and in direct violation of the State Constitution as well as of the Federal Constitution.

McCARTHY SENT TO SING SING.

To Serve Ten Years for Killing Donohue in Cattle Park.

Patrick McCarthy of 155 Greenpoint avenue, Brooklyn, was sentenced yesterday in the Queens County Supreme Court for shooting Timothy Donohue in Cattle Park last May by Justice Van Sicken to not less than seven and a half years nor more than ten years and ten months in Sing Sing. As the sentence stands McCarthy would be released during the winter months and Justice Van Sicken will therefore resentence McCarthy this morning.

John MacCrate, counsel for McCarthy, in moving for a new trial, said he will name the man who killed Donohue.

ALBANY, March 1.—Chairman Thompson of the Senate Public Service Committee reported favorably tonight Senator Spring's bill permitting the State Public Service Commission, after investigation to reduce the number of men employed in train crews.

At a conference of Republican Senators last night it was agreed to pass a bill repealing the extra crew law. This bill does not go as far as that because under it the extra crews continue on the trains. The Spring bill permits a railroad to apply to the Public Service Commission to have the number of trainmen reduced and permits the commission to investigate the question on its own initiative. Without application from the railroad.

For this purpose it may subpoena railway employees and thus secure their testimony, so they will be under no fear of being disciplined by the railroad for their evidence.

Most of the Senate session was given over to a discussion of Gov. Whitman's message on the subject of the railroad. The message, which was sent to the Legislature last week, Democratic Leader Wagner insisted the Governor's figures were wrong, but that they were right, and that instead of there being a surplus in the Treasury of $1,000,000 there is an actual deficit of $250,000.

D'Altomonte, Who Wed Mrs. Balcrook, Swallows Morphine.

Baron A. Bonafide D'Altomonte was taken to Bellevue Hospital yesterday from the New Grand Hotel, where he had tried to commit suicide by swallowing a large quantity of morphine. When a waiter went to his room with coffee the Baron was found dead. He was taken to the hospital in a few hours. He had been married to Mrs. Jeanne Balcrook, widow of Raymond Balcrook of New York, in 1905. She was a daughter of Alonzo Locke of Lexington, Ky., and had gone to Paris to study music. The Baron was then studying criminology under Prof. Cesare Lombroso.

At the hospital last night it was said that his condition was serious.

Police Officers and Woman Ask $30,250 From Theatrical.

Three suits aggregating $30,250 were filed in the Supreme Court yesterday against the Elks lodge, No. 1,000, of the city, for the reason that the lodge had taken a large sum of money from the estate of a woman who had been killed by a lion. The woman, who was the wife of a police officer, had been killed by a lion while she was on a tour of the city. The lodge had taken a large sum of money from the estate of the woman, and the police officers and the woman's family are now suing the lodge for the money.
